In 2008, a doctor and a lawyer came together to form a research center that would leverage both of their expertise to address some of the biggest health and health care challenges facing children and families. Ten years later, PolicyLab has grown to comprise nearly 90 talented experts across multiple disciplines, expanded to four main research portfolios and positively influenced a number of key children's health policy and practice issues. As we move throughout our 10th anniversary year, we will be sharing a number of stories and perspectives in a blog post series on our ongoing efforts to chart new frontiers in children's health research and policy. You can read the first blog post from our founders here, and make sure to check back in during the coming months.
