Our Top 5 Blog Posts of 2022

Date Posted:

Dec 21, 2022

After another busy year at PolicyLab, we're taking time to reflect on 2022 by revisiting our most-read blog posts of the year.

Count down the five most-read 2022 PolicyLab blog posts below:

5. Expert Q&A: Evaluating New Tools to Address Youth Suicide in Primary Care

4. Black Breastfeeding Matters: Mitigating Racial Inequities in Child Health Outcomes

3. Supporting School Nurses to Improve Student Health

2. Making Nutrition Education for Teens Accurate, Comprehensive and Inclusive

CLICK HERE TO REVEAL THE TOP POST OF 2022!

Honorable mention: Making its return for the second year in a row as one of the top-visited pages across PolicyLab's entire website is this 2021 blog post; Period Poverty: The Public Health Crisis We Don't Talk About.

As we close out the year, we also asked several PolicyLab team members to share highlights from their professional lives in 2022. Read more about their incredible accomplishments here!

We look forward to sharing new research findings, informing meaningful policy change, and continuing to work together with our partners in 2023 to improve the health and well-being of children and families across the country. Happy New Year!

Laura Cavello
Communications Manager