Improving transgender health education for future doctors

Visit Article

We wholeheartedly agree with the assertion, in Stroumsa's excellent and comprehensive review of transgender health, that future physicians must be trained to meet the unique health needs of the more than one million gender-variant people in the United States.

Journal:

American Journal of Public Health
Authors: Nadia Dowshen