Join us: Understanding the Impact of Housing Policy Changes on Children in Immigrant Families

Join us on December 10th at 3:15 ET / 12:15 PT for a LIVE discussion about recent changes to federal rental assistance and the importance of housing for child health.

PolicyLab will be hosting a conversation with faculty member Dr. Michael Luke and Center for Budget and Policy Priorities' Senior Policy Analyst Sonya Acosta about the importance of stable housing for child health, including children in immigrant families. This conversation will build on Dr. Luke's Blind Spots blog post from spring 2026 on a then-proposed HUD rule change to exclude many immigrant families from federal rental assistance - a rule which has since gone into effect.
