Children's Hospital of Philadelphia
PolicyLab

Routine Screening for Child Abuse Might Spot More Cases: Study

New research findings from PolicyLab's Dr. Joanne Wood and colleagues found that early signs of child abuse among infants and toddlers are often missed - due in part to a lack of standardized screening.

Source:

HealthDay

Visit Link