Closing the Gap: Improving Access to Mental Health Care Through Enhanced Training in Residency

Visit Article

In a perspective piece published in Pediatrics, Stephanie Doupnik, MD writes about the high prevelance and mental health disorders among children and how these disorders often go undetected, despite routine visits to the the pediatricians office. Her piece, titled "Closing the Gap: Improving Access to Mental Health Care Through Enhanced Training in Residency," highlights concrete ways to better equip pediatricians with the tools and training they need to meet the mental health needs of their patients.

Journal:

Pediatrics
Authors: Raval GR, Doupnik SK

Related Content

- Mental Health Conditions and Medical and Surgical Hospital Utilization
  Article
  Nov 2016
- Mental Health in Hospitalized Kids
  Blog Post
  Oct 27, 2016